

cause, next Monday, why he should not receive certain coupons mentioned and described in a certain petition, for taxes, and refund the money before then paid. The writ was obtained from the judge of the hustings court of Richmond by John C. Williams, a broker. In the case at issue the coupons were found to correspond with the numbers on the judgments given by the jury, and the treasurer, for this reason, refused to pay them.

BASE BALL.

An Amusing Game Between the Operatic and Postoffice Nines—Other Games.

A small attendance witnessed the game of base ball yesterday at Athletic park between the Operatic and Postoffice Department clubs. Although there was some very heavy batting and excellent fielding on both sides, that old feeling which lies dormant in the breast of the lover of a good game of ball was not aroused to any alarming extent by the play of either club. The uniforms were different in nearly every case. Baker and Johnson resembled the two Dions or a couple of gray friars. Doug, Allison looked more than heroic in the freshly washed suit of Capt. White, of the Nationals. The captain all most went into hysterics when he saw how Doug resembled Humpty Dumpty, and Morrell in his ratty and whiskery shirt was the fac simile of the "Pirate King".

The warblers went to the bat humming, "There's a letter in the can and it points straight at me," but owing to the effective pitching of Gould the letter received contained an invitation to go out into the field. The P. O. D.'s clutched the willow in a manner which plainly and only said, "Look-a-hoo, I see you miffing there," but after a few futile and vain attempts had to give way to the sweet singers. The first run made by the tuneless lyrics was credited to Mr. Garner, and if he could have carried his illumined countenance upon the stage at that momentous moment the footlights could have been dispensed with. Harbaugh and Morrell deserve a wreath each for making the other two runs.

Mr. Loefler, the gentleman who was condemned to act as umpire, performed that duty with Jolitic patience. He went further than his position called for by assisting the catcher and holding the music books for the weary warblers whenever one of them came to the bat, as they all kept up an out-of-tune piano-like unharmonious humming during the entire game. The balladists made three runs and the stump runners fourteen.

The following are the names and positions of the gentlemen who took part:

Operatic club—McMorris, 1b; Garner, 1f; Morrell, 2f; Beaver, p; Sousa, c; John, c; Guy, 3b; Harbaugh, 3b; Fisher, c; Postoffice department—Gould, p; Allison, c; Buckington, c; Baker, 1b; Johnson, 2b; McCabe, 3b; Bangs, 1f; Rudy, c; Deihl, 1f.

The Waverly Base Ball club visited Alexandria yesterday and defeated the local team of that city, to the chagrin of the many spectators who were present. This is the first occasion in which our club has presented its full nine in that city this season. The boys batted terrifically, making 11 hits with a total of 23. The Alexandria team failed to do anything with McKee's pitching. The batting honors of the Waverlys belong to Ryan, White, Girard and Hart, while the bright fielding of Girard, Noone, White, Yewell and Allen made the game very interesting.

Score by innings:

The game was of the one sided kind, and the charge of unfairness was made against the umpire. There was considerable disorder, much to the chagrin of the East Ends. Today and tomorrow Pittsburgh's famous nine, the Hunters, will play a game with the National club, of this city.

ATHLETIC PARK—National vs. Hunters to-day.

Mr. Joy Was Delighted.

The feat, which had almost become one of the lost arts, of catching a salmon from the river in the vicinity with hook and line was revived Monday afternoon by Mr. H. Joy, an employe at Messrs. Kimball & Gerish's tannery, who succeeded, after a hard struggle, in landing a fifteen pounder, says the Manchester (N. H.) Mirror.

Mr. Joy is extremely fond of fishing, and has visited the river on several occasions the present summer, with rod and line. Monday afternoon he took up his position on a sand bar north of the eddy below Amoskang Falls, and while fishing for trout he was suddenly aware that an unusually large fish had taken the bait and was vigorously pulling to get away.

Mr. Joy's experience as a fisherman told him that a salmon had taken hold, and keeping the line sufficiently taut, in order that the salmon could not get his tail over the sand, so as to break it, he rushed into the river and followed the line up, hand over hand, and soon reached the ganey salmon, and, securing a hold through his gills, gathered the fish up in his arms, and after a determined struggle landed his magnificent prize safely on shore.

Every thread of clothing on Mr. Joy was wet completely through in his fight with the salmon, but he cared little for this so long as he succeeded in securing the prize. He carried his prize home, and found that it tipped the scales at fifteen pounds. The catching of this fish in the manner above described, and 400 yards from the fishway, was legal, and we are reliably informed that there were no witnesses who affirm that the salmon was caught in the manner stated.
